

SOCIETY IN THE SPRING SEASON

PHOTOGRAPH BY GERHARD SISTERS

MISS BERTHA ENLOE. A South Side pianist of ability, Miss Enloe has recently been graduated in music.

The reception given on Friday by Mrs. Morton Jourdan and Miss Byrd Jourdan in their handsome new Lindell boulevard home was decidedly the leading large afternoon event of the week. Several visitors at the Jourdan residence assisted in receiving. They were Mrs. Edward Everett East of Carrollton, Mo., and Mrs. Jefferson Lee Thorpe of Kansas City, besides a host of St. Louis friends of the hostesses. Among the guests were Mrs. Thomas McDermott, Mrs. Robert Lee Jourdan and Mrs. Charles Winthrop Mansur.

Mrs. Jourdan was one of the best reception costumes that has been seen in a long time. I cannot begin to describe its loveliness nor its component parts, except to tell you that it was rich Du Barry pink in tone, and chiffon-velvet in texture, that wonderful weave which carries such effects in light and shade. Spangles, without which nothing is complete this spring, added their usual elegant touch.

It was a gown to dream of and rave over.

Miss Jourdan looked unusually well in white chiffon-velvet, with lots of lace, also of white. She carried a great sheet of Bermuda lilacs over her arm, and fitted into the lovely decorative scheme of the drawing-room to a nicety.

The other women in the receiving party were all in their best and prettiest. Mrs. McDermott wore black spangled lace; Mrs. East, a blouse soft cloth with applique of two tones, one lighter and one darker than the dress Mrs. Thorpe, an even lace effect that was very becoming, and Mrs. Mansur, a white cloth and lace costume.

Miss Bezie Maxwell and Miss Jessie Leonard served punch in the library, but the dining-room service was done entirely by caterers.

Mrs. Paul Brown, Mrs. Edward Raa, Miss Bushman and Miss Nancy Gerardi came without their hats and distributed themselves judiciously.

The decorative features were especially good. In the drawing-room, as mentioned before, the flowers were Easter lilies, massed everywhere, and thrown into relief with plenty of dark greenery.

The library was trimmed with American beauty roses, and the dining-room was a color effect in pink roses and greens, with an electric table.

As this is Mrs. Jourdan's first entertainment in her new home, the invitations were sent out very generally, and fully 50 callers presented themselves between 3 and 5 o'clock.

In the evening all the house party, augmented by the men, betook themselves to the D. O. C. ball.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Little, and the Misses Little will remove this week to their country place, Alden Hall, having staid in town until after the Little-Niedringhaus wedding of yesterday.

Arthur Gilman of Cambridge, Mass., who is making a Western tour and comes to St. Louis from Chicago on his way to the Pacific Coast, is to give a morning lecture on Wednesday at the St. Louis Woman's Club. Mr. Gilman has a German school in Cambridge and is said to entertain some new and highly original ideas on education, which he will delineate for the club members' benefit. He is not a professional and comes by invitation.

In a fortnight this same club will entertain with a musicale, the details of which are not yet settled.

Mrs. Daniel Manning is due to arrive in town on the fifteenth and to take possession of her house, which she has engaged for the Fall, the Thorpe H. West residence in Berlin avenue. Mrs. Manning is now in Albany arranging her affairs for the summer.

Doctor Theodor Lewald, Imperial German Commissioner General, had the courtesy to absent himself from the D. O. C. ball and go to Chicago last week, pleading business. Of course nobody doubts the "business," but the multitude of belles, who, having read reviews of the fascinating Herr Doctor, went to ball with tremors of anticipation, must certainly be considered, and it seems to me nothing less than genuine heartlessness on the
